2.3: Supplemental Report- Decrease rate of return to institutions for offenders from 27.8% to 25.0% by 2020

Reported on August 17, 2015

Background:

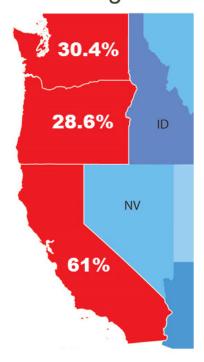

- Our goal is to reduce the number of offenders who return to institutions as a result of new felony convictions.
- Lower return rates contribute to increased public safety and reduced cost to the taxpayer for the state's criminal justice system.
- For releases in CY2011, 30.4% of offenders were readmitted to a Washington State prison within three years.

Background: State Comparisons

Defining and counting recidivism differs between states

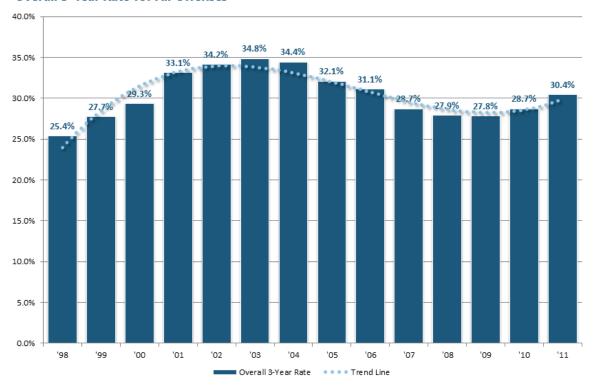

- Washington (30.4% for CY2011 releases)
 - The rate of return to institutions measures how many offenders return to a Washington State prison within 3 years of release.
- Oregon (28.6% average for CY2011 releases)
 - Recidivism is defined as the total percentage of a release cohort that was convicted of any felony at any time within the specified number of months (12, 24 and 36 months) following release from prison.
- California (61% for FY2008-09 releases)
 - The California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) measures recidivism by tracking arrests, convictions, and returns to State prison for 3 years after release.

Trend of First Year Returns

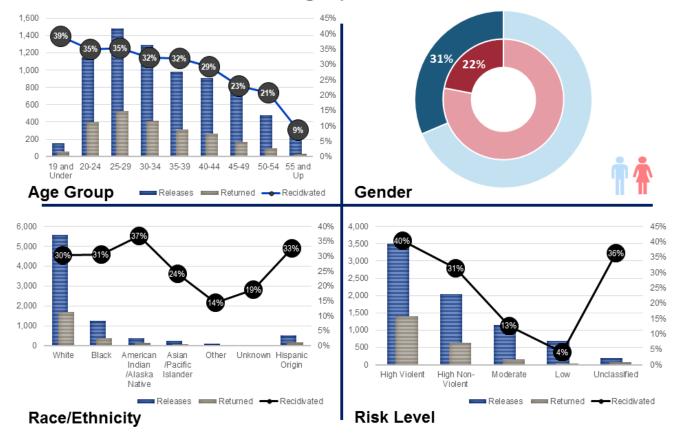

High Risk Offender Releases

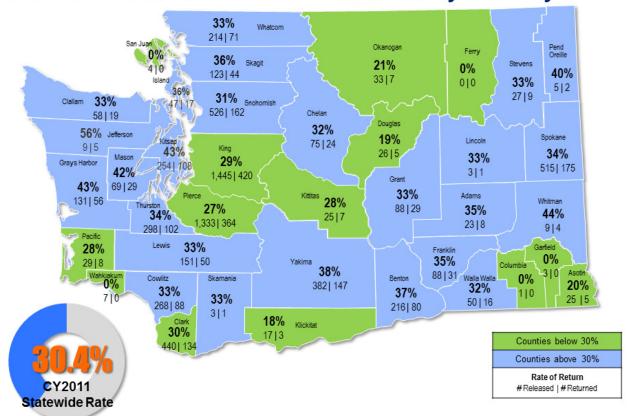

- The rate of readmission during the first year after release has been trending up over the past five years.
- The percent of offenders released that are assessed as high risk continues to rise.

2.3.d: Increase percentage of adult offenders who are employed post-release from 30% to 40% by 2017

Current State: Demographics for CY2011 Returns

Current State: CY2011 Returns by County

Opportunity: Gap between now and our target.

There were roughly 7,850 releases in CY2014.

- At a 30% re-offense rate (7,850 x 30%), 2,355 will return in 3 years
- At a 25% re-offense rate (7,850 x 25%), 1,962 will return in 3 years
- Our goal will be achieved if 400 fewer offenders re-offend
